

New Pattern Partners

Blueberry Backroads, Sara Hardwig

Sara Hardwig grew up in Minnesota dreaming of becoming an artist. She comes from a very talented family. Her mother is Emily Hardwig, whose pattern company is Red Button Quilt Company. In 2007, Emily encouraged her daughter to design a Christmas ornament pattern for her quilt shop, and Blueberry Backroads was born. Over the years, Sara has expanded from mostly embroidery to appliqué, quilting, and now working with wool and WoolFelt®. Her latest inspirations include adding color to her patterns using Crayola and Sticky Fabri-Solvay from Sulky of America in combination with WoolFelt®.

Jennifer Jangles, Jennifer Heynen

It all started at age 4, when Jennifer received a child's Sew Perfect Sewing Machine. Her grandmother gave her a stack of upholstery fabric samples, and Jennifer jumped right in to sewing. She has been a self-supporting artist for 18 years. First selling her ceramic tiles, beads, and jewelry and then eventually moving into textiles. Jennifer designs fabric for In The Beginning Fabrics and is currently designing her twelfth line. She also has a line of sewing patterns and craft kits under the Jennifer Jangles name. Many of her kits include National Nonwovens' WoolFelt. "It's the only brand of felt I use in the kits as well as sewing for myself."
